All images used in this book are freely available in the public domain with a simple Google search. Below I have linked all photos used by page they appear on to credit the original owner. The only exception to this is my own photos from my personal collection which are labelled as such. My main aim was to collate as much information as possible for the reader and group it all together, allowing you to then research the things that are of interest. A huge thank you to all the organisations that have made their images available in the public domain.

MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Milwaukee County Medical Examiner Jeffrey M. Jentzen (center, in sport coat) supervises the removal of at least 10 boxes that police said contained human remains from the apartment of serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer in 1991. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Members of the news media and others flocked to the scene of killings at 924 N. 25th Street. The size of the crowd swelled after a television news conference about the slayings at the Milwaukee County Medical Examiner's Office in July 1991. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Onlookers line the balconies of a neighbouring building to get a better view as Milwaukee police search serial killer Jeffrey L. Dahmer's apartment for evidence in 1991. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Neighbours gather near the Oxford Apartments on July 24, 1991, in Milwaukee, as police continued to investigate their discovery of body parts in the apartment of Jeffrey Dahmer. ASSOCIATED PRESS A neighbourhood youth reads a handwritten note posted on the door at the home of Catherine Dahmer on South 57th Street in West Allis. Dahmer is the grandmother of Jeffrey L. Dahmer, who was charged Thursday with four counts of first-degree intentional homicide. The note asked that the family be left alone and said the family had received crank phone calls. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES The flag flies at half-staff outside the Oxford Apartments, 924 N. 25th St. An alderman fears the 49-unit building, former home to suspected serial killer Jeffrey L. Dahmer, might become a morbid tourist attraction and plans to ask the Common Council to pay for demolition of the structure. The man in this image was not identified. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Members of the media pack the Milwaukee County courtroom where Jeffrey L. Dahmer, 31, was charged with four counts of first-degree intentional homicide and habitual criminality. More charges are expected. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Jeffrey L. Dahmer in Milwaukee County Circuit Court on August 7, 1991, was charged with eight counts of first-degree homicide, raising the total counts against him to 12. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES A large group of Milwaukee residents, many carrying signs against the Police Department, protest the way the department handled the investigation into mass murderer Jeffrey L. Dahmer. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Hundreds of people gather at MacArthur Square in Milwaukee on Aug. 6, 1991, as they held a candlelight vigil in remembrance of the victims found in the Jeffrey L. Dahmer apartment on July 22. ASSOCIATED PRESS District Attorney E. Michael McCann points to Jeffrey L. Dahmer as he cross-examines Fred S. Berlin during trial in February 1992. Dahmer's stepmother and father, Shari and Lionel, during a break in testimony during Jeffrey Dahmer's sanity trial in February 1992. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES

Jeffrey L. Dahmer hands a doctored newspaper made from clippings of different news sources to Carol Boyle of Chicago, sister-in-law of defense attorney Gerald P. Boyle, during a break during trial in February 1992. "It's amazing what they come up with," Dahmer said. A Milwaukee Journal nameplate was pasted over the cover of an edition of the Weekly World News, which carried a headline that said "Milwaukee Cannibal Kills His Cellmate." MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES A 1992 photo shows how police cruisers were used to simulate the lighting conditions on the night that police confronted Jeffrey L. Dahmer, as members of the Police and Fire Commission tour the area near Dahmer's former apartment on North 25th Street. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Relatives and supporters of serial killer Jeffrey L. Dahmer's victims console one another as they watch the demolition of the Oxford Apartments, Dahmer's former residence at 924 N. 25th St. Catherine Lacy (left), mother of victim Oliver Lacy; Jeannetta Robinson, founder and director of Career Youth Development Incorporated; Shirley Hughes, mother of Anthony Hughes; and Valerie Thomas, sister of David C. Thomas, watched the demolition on Nov. 17, 1992. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES About 45 people hold hands in a circle in front of the Police Administration Building in November 1992, urging the Fire and Police Commission to uphold the firings of two police officers involved in the Jeffrey L. Dahmer case. MILWAUKEE JOURNAL SENTINEL FILES Serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer is interviewed by Nancy Glass at Columbia Correctional Facility in Portage, Wis., Jan. 12, 1993, for the syndicated television show "Inside Edition." Dahmer, who was serving a life sentence for the murders of more than a dozen young men and boys in Milwaukee, said he killed, dismembered and ate parts of his victims' bodies "not because I hated them, but to keep them with me." ASSOCIATED PRESS Summit County Sheriff's Detective Larry Momchilov sifts through debris as Dr. Thomas Marshall, a forensic expert with the Sheriff's Department, checks a burned barrel at the former house of Jeffrey Dahmer on July 30, 1991, in Bath Township, Ohio. ASSOCIATED PRESS Convicted killer Christopher Scarver listens to one of his attorneys, Daniel Patrykus, during a special hearing on May 15, 1995, in Portage, Wis. At the hearing, Scarver changed his not guilty plea in the beating death of serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer and Jesse Anderson to no contest on two first-degree intentional homicide charges. Serial killer Robert Pickton was convicted on six counts of second-degree murder but is suspected of killing dozens of women who went missing from Vancouver's Downtown Eastside. Vancouver police were criticized for not taking the cases seriously because many of the missing were sex workers or addicts. Credit (Vancouver Police Dept)

A photo entered in to evidence in the murder trial of Robert William Pickton in Port Coquitlam: Pickton's cluttered office, with the stuffed head of his pet horse Goldie in the upper left hand corner.

A close up of the silver bag police found in Pickton's messy office room, which contained an asthma inhaler prescribed to missing woman Sereena Abotsway, whom Pickton is accused of killing. A police officer is holding the asthma inhaler. The Crown says her DNA was found on two syringes in this room as well.

Inside the slaughterhouse, which was located beside Pickton's trailer.

In the photo is a freezer, a closet, two tables and a hook. A Crown witness testified that she saw Pickton butchering a woman in this building. The Crown also contends that Mona Wilson's partial remains were found in this building. The Vancouver Sun
